Safety and tolerability of the fixed combination of roflumilast, montelukast, and theophylline in patients with asthma and chronic obstructive pulmonary disease (PIERCE): results from a phase 2, multicentre, open-label trial. To evaluate the tolerability of the oral fixed combination of roflumilast, montelukast and theophylline in patients with asthma and chronic obstructive pulmonary disease (COPD). A phase 2, open-label, multicentre, multi-arm trial. Randomised patients (N = 926) from 22 sites were treated with the fixed-dose combination of roflumilast (500 µg twice daily), montelukast (10 mg once daily) and theophylline (200 mg twice daily) for 28 days. At baseline, there were more men and patients aged ≥ 65 years, and more patients with asthma and COPD were receiving inhaled corticosteroids and other maintenance therapy. During the treatment period, all patients (n = 906) had asthma (n = 534) or COPD (n = 369) as confirmed by clinical and spirometric assessment. Overall, patients reported only mild adverse events, the most common being headache (6.7%), fatigue (6.3%), nausea (5.1%) and diarrhoea (3.2%). Patients with COPD reported more adverse events than patients with asthma (48.6% vs. 43.9%). Treatment with the fixed-dose combination of roflumilast, montelukast and theophylline in this study was well tolerated in patients with asthma and COPD. There were no clinically meaningful differences between the safety profiles of the combination in patients with COPD and those with asthma. Q: How to make dropdown menu bigger?
